Summary:

It's not like a not-straight couple can really be out freely in Hawkins Indiana, circa 1984. Lucky for Billy and Steve though, they have very...understanding friends. Who tend to put up with a lot of their shit. And who will hopefully teach Steve himself how to flirt a little bit better.

Looking Forward To

Steve Harrington was walking out of school with Nancy Wheeler and Jonathan Byers. The two of them were dating, so Steve himself wasn't paying much attention as they were deep in conversation about something or the other. The three of them, actually, had become pretty good friends though. If a year ago you'd have told Steve that he would be friends with Jonathan Byers of all people, he would've laughed. Now he was glad he was.

As they were walking, someone called out to Steve. It was their other friend Billy.

Friend was a funny word. Billy could still be a piece of shit when he was in a bad mood, or when he just felt like it. Other times it felt like he was actually flirting with Steve. Especially after they'd had sex last weekend. So yeah, you could say things were getting pretty serious. That was a joke.

But seriously, they...were a little more than friends now.

"Hey Harrington," Billy called, a lazy cigarette hanging out between his lips; they were close enough that no one else, not besides Jonathan and Nance of course, could hear them. Thank god, especially for what came out of his mouth next. "Looking forward to the sex tonight."

"Well get ready for the skin circus, you little peanut."

"..." Billy stopped, giving him an honestly horrified look.

"..." Nancy looked like she was struggling not to laugh.

"...whoa," was all Jonathan could say.

Steve wanted to die. What the hell could he even say to make this better? Nothing! That's what!

"I was put in an awkward situation and I reacted poorly, okay?!"

Okay. But it didn't make it that much better.
